Starting in business

Starting a new business, or starting in a business you have bought, is a major life challenge. The NSW Small Business website provides guidance on the topics you'll need to think through if you are to be successful.

If you'd like to talk this information over with a business adviser, contact a Business Advisory Service where you obtain free objective and confidential guidance on getting started in business.

The NSW Department of State and Regional Development offers a range of programs and services to assist firms at different stages of the business life cycle and to support those with particular needs and opportunities.
